ELEPHANTS HATE CHILLI

By producing high quality, delicious, and uniquely African chilli products, Elephant Pepper seeks to create new economic opportunities for rural Africans and support efforts to safely reduce the conflict surrounding elephants and humans in Africa.

WE LOVE ELEPHANTS

The Elephant Pepper Development Trust (EPDT) is an elephant conservation project that works with rural African farmers to reduce the conflict that arises when elephants eat their crops. EPDT discovered that elephants hate chillies, will not eat them and find their hot spicy smell a major discomfort. This makes the humble chilli a perfect non-lethal elephant deterrent that farmers can grow easily and at the same time keep elephants out of their crops.

Elephant Pepper was created to help address the lack of income opportunities within these remote communities. Farmers sell their chillies to Elephant Pepper who use this key ingredient in their uniquely African spice products, which are marketed and sold around the world.

Elephant Pepper works collaboratively with EPDT under a shared vision of wildlife preservation and sustainable economic development with 10% of the profits from the sale of their products being donated back to EPDT for further work in its conservation projects.
